CONSTITUTION MAKING IN THE TWO SUDANS

BIOGRAPHIES

Veronica Eragu is a Jennings Randolph Senior Fellow at USIP as well as a lawyer and an advocate of the Courts of Judicature of Uganda. She is a senior consultant with EDG Venture Consult and is deeply involved in women's rights, children's rights, vulnerable persons' rights, conflict resolution, and peacebuilding in Africa. Eragu currently works with the World Bank as Gender and Conflict Advisor, focusing on a special program, Learning on Gender in Conflict Affected Areas in Africa (LOGICA) Trust Fund. Eragu also does consultancies in human rights, governance and rule of law for the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the International Development Law Organization (IDLO). Her project at USIP focuses on promoting women's participation in conflict resolution and peacebuilding in the Great Lakes region. Eragu previously held an international position with UNICEF and served as commissioner at the Uganda Human Rights Commission, a national human rights institution. Her experience in peacemaking forums dates back to 1985 when she served as the UNICEF representative and advocated for the early release of women and children in negotiations between the government of Sierra Leone and the Revolutionary United Front. From 2006, she was involved in the Juba peace process between the government of Uganda and the Lord's Resistance Army, first as a representative of the Human Rights Commission and later at the mediation table providing technical expertise and advice. Eragu has worked in Juba supporting the government of South Sudan on post-conflict issues, especially the empowerment of women and human rights. She was technical expert in the April 2010 Sudanese election and the January 2011 South Sudan referendum.

Jason Gluck is a Senior Rule of Law Adviser in USIP's Rule of Law Center and Director of USIP's Constitution-Making Program. Gluck's focus is on the design and implementation of constitution-making processes in post-conflict and transitional states. He has and continues to advise government officials and civil society actors on issues of constitutional reform in Iraq, Sudan, South Sudan, Libya, and elsewhere. Substantively, Gluck's areas of expertise include constitutional design, federalism, and minority rights. Gluck joined USIP as a rule of law adviser in January 2008. Previously, he was a legal officer and constitutional adviser with the United Nations Assistance Mission in Iraq, where he advised the Council of Representatives during the 2007 constitutional review. He was also a senior program officer with the National Democratic Institute in Iraq, where he worked with the Iraqi Parliament to develop parliamentary institutional and legislative capacity. Gluck received his J.D. from the University of Michigan and a B.A. in political science from Northwestern University.
Jon Temin is the Director of USIP’s Sudan program. He travels to Sudan frequently to assess developments and meet with government officials, civil society leaders, and international actors. Prior to joining the Institute, he spent five years with the non-governmental organization CHF International designing development and peacebuilding programs throughout Africa and elsewhere. He has working experience in more than a dozen countries across Africa, Latin America, and Eastern Europe. He is the author of more than a dozen publications focusing on Africa, conflict, governance and media in respected journals, edited volumes, and newspapers. He holds a B.A. from Swarthmore College and an M.A. in International Relations from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. He is a former Fulbright Fellow in Ghana.

Nureldin Satti is currently the Secretary General of the Sudan National Library. Satti is a career diplomat, having joined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Sudan in 1975 and serving in the embassies of Sudan in Brussels, N’djamena and Paris throughout the 1980s. In 1996, he joined UNESCO and has since served in a number of functions implementing UNESCO programs throughout Africa. In 1998, he assumed the role of Director of UNESCO’s Programme of Education for Emergencies and Reconstruction (PEER), working in the Great Lakes region and the Horn of Africa; in 2001, he was appointed as Director of the Dar Es Salaam Cluster Office, covering Tanzania, Comoros, Madagascar, Mauritius, and Seychelles; and in 2006, he became the Director of the Addis Ababa Cluster Office covering Ethiopia, Djibouti, the African Union, the ECA, and IGAD. Satti also served as the Principal Deputy SRSG for the United Nations Peacekeeping Mission in Burundi starting in 2004 and as the Acting SRSG from April to December 2006. Since retiring from UNESCO in 2008, Satti was honored with a fellowship at the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars and has continued to work on issues of dialogue and peacebuilding in Darfur and South Kordofan.
