February 28, 2011

Senator Daniel Inouye
Chairman
Senate Committee on Appropriations

Senator Thad Cochran
Ranking Minority Member
Senate Committee on Appropriations

Senator Patrick Leahy
Chairman
Subcommittee on the Department of State,
Foreign Operations, and Related Agencies

Senator Lindsey Graham
Ranking Minority Member
Subcommittee on the Department of State,
Foreign Operations, and Related Agencies

Dear Chairman Inouye, Ranking Minority Member Cochran, Subcommittee Chairman Leahy, and Ranking Minority Member Graham:

As Deans and Directors of the leading Schools of International Affairs around the world that train young professionals for careers in international affairs, we urge you to restore the public funding for the United States Institute of Peace. The U.S. Institute of Peace, created by Congress in 1984 as a nonpartisan federal institution to support the nation’s capacity to prevent, manage and resolve international conflicts, has had its FY2011 funding eliminated from the House of Representatives’ version of the federal budget continuing resolution bill (HRI). We deeply oppose this measure.

The U.S. Institute of Peace has worked on the ground to stop and resolve actual conflicts in dozens of countries around the globe. But it has also contributed to the understanding of conflict and how to deal with it. It has helped to build the conflict management and resolution field, both as an area of study and as an applied science. The Institute is not a think tank – of which there are many. The best analogy is to an applied research facility. Like a teaching hospital, USIP sponsors research and puts it to practice, training the next generation of professionals in the process. It supports and develops the best thinking about conflict management, it deploys practitioners steeped in conflict best practices into the field in overseas war zones, and it educates and trains current and future professionals.

Furthermore, its programs have inspired high school, college and graduate students to enter into public service, in both the civilian and military fields. Faculty and students in each of our institutions have benefited from USIP’s programs, and many of them are giving back to their country and communities.

Zeroing out USIP’s funding, will dramatically reduce global capacity to prevent and resolve conflict, especially in Afghanistan and Iraq where the Institute is training defense personnel from the Pentagon heading to Kabul, and training civilians in Iraq for the withdrawal of U.S. forces in July. A funding cut also jeopardizes the Institute’s work on countering extremism in Pakistan.

If the United States is serious about winning the peace as well as fighting wars, its national leaders and citizens must defend the institutions that are doing the hard work of transitioning societies from war to peace. USIP has a permanent home in the United States capital from which to work, teach, inspire, and prepare current and future generations of peacemakers both in the US and abroad --and to be a symbol of humanity’s ability to reduce violent international conflict in the 21st century.
We urge Congress to support the U.S. Institute of Peace and its Congressional mandate to prevent and resolve conflict, and to bring sustainable peace to zones of conflict. Achievement of this goal will serve American foreign policy and security interests, stabilize regions plagued by terrorism, improve the global economy, and reinforce the United States’ standing in the world.

Respectfully,

Louis W. Goodman, Dean
School of International Service
AMERICAN UNIVERSITY

Fen Hampson, Director
Norman Paterson School of International Service
CARLETON UNIVERSITY

John Coatsworth, Dean
School of International and Public Affairs
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Bruce Kuniholm, Dean
Sanford School of Public Policy
DUKE UNIVERSITY

Mike Mochizuki
Associate Dean for Academic Programs
Elliott School of International Affairs
GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Carol Lancaster, Dean
Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service
GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

William J. Long, Dean
Sam Nunn School of International Affairs
GEORGIA INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

David T. Ellwood, Dean
John F. Kennedy School of Government
HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Innwon Park, Dean
Graduate School of International Affairs
KOREA UNIVERSITY

Kishore Mahbubani, Dean
Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy
NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

Masahiko Itaki, Dean
Graduate School of International Relations
RITSUMEIKAN UNIVERSITY

Jin-Hyun Paik, Dean
Graduate School of International Studies
SEOUL NATIONAL UNIVERSITY

Francis Verillaud, VP for International Affairs
Paris School of International Affairs
SCIENCES PO

Lars Bergam, President
STOCKHOLM SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS
Michael Wasylenko, Interim Dean
Maxwell School
SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY

Greg Lindsey
Greg Lindsey, Interim Dean
Hubert H. Humphrey School of Public Affairs
UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

Stephen W. Bosworth, Dean
The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy
TUFTS UNIVERSITY

John T. S. Keeler, Dean
Graduate School of Public and International Affairs
UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH

Peter F. Cowhey, Dean
Graduate School of International Relations and Pacific Studies
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, SAN DIEGO

John Odell, Director
School of International Relations
UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Christopher Hill, Dean
Josef Korbel School of International Studies
UNIVERSITY OF DENVER

Dirk Lehmkühl, Director
Master of Arts, International Affairs
UNIVERSITY OF ST. GALLEN

Donald F. Kettl, Dean
School of Public Policy
UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

Robert Hutchings, Dean
Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs
UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT AUSTIN

Susan M. Collins, Dean
Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Chung Min Lee, Dean
Graduate School of International Studies
YONSEI UNIVERSITY